These CORD/Academics resources and others are available at www.aoassn.org:

- Orthopaedic Residency Information Network (ORIN)™ – a central portal of information about participating CORD-member orthopaedic surgery residency programs. Medical students can use this tool to explore orthopaedic surgery residency programs to which they may decide to apply. Programs can use this tool to highlight program information, strengths, and opportunities.
- Electronic Standardized Letter of Recommendation (eSLOR) – meant to replace a separate narrative letter of recommendation, the eSLOR provides orthopaedic residency programs a concise perspective on a candidate.
- AOA Critical Issues in Education JBJS Open Access Channel – articles published in this open access journal reflect relevant education research and discourse.
- AOA/SOMOS Faculty Development Lecture Series – available for download by CORD Affiliates, these presentations can be used to fulfill accreditation requirements.
- Transition to Practice Modules – prepared presentation tools, designed to aid orthopaedic residency program and fellowship directors in preparing their senior residents and fellows for the next stage of their careers.
