

Jason A. Strelzow, is a triple fellowship trained orthopaedic surgeon, and associate professor at the University of Chicago. He is an orthopaedic traumatologist and upper extremity surgeon. He completed his medical school, and orthopaedic surgery residency at the University of British Columbia in Vancouver, Canada. He then did additional fellowship training in Hand and Upper Extremity at the Hand and Upper Limb Center in London Ontario, Canada a Trauma fellowship at the Royal Infirmary of Edinburgh in Scotland in the United Kingdom and a Surgical Ethics Fellowship at the Maclean Center for Ethics at the University of Chicago. Along with being dedicated to his clinical work, Dr. Strelzow is the Residency Director for Orthopaedic surgery at UCM and is heavily involved in clinical research. He has published over 100 scientific articles, and is an Associate Editor for Journal of Hand Surgery & Journal of Bone and Joint Surgery Reviews. He is also the Director of OPRI (Operational Performance Research Institute) and has an active interest in process improvement, EMR optimization, access to care and cost effectiveness. His current interests are exploring patient-reported outcomes related to trauma particularly in the upper extremity. He has an active interest in evaluating the outcomes around urban trauma, PTSD and urban ballistic (gunshot related) injuries.