

Ryan Roach, MD, MS, FAOA

I am from upstate New York and attended Purchase College for my undergraduate studies where I played 4 years on the men's varsity soccer team. I then moved to New Orleans, to complete a master's degree in cell and molecular biology and my medical degree. Following medical school, I completed my orthopedic surgery residency training at NYU Langone Orthopedics where I was elected as an executive chief resident. I then completed my sports medicine and arthroscopy fellowship at the American Sports Medicine Institute and now serve as Assistant Professor and Team Physician at the University of Florida. My clinical focus is on minimally invasive and arthroscopic treatments of shoulder, elbow, hip and knee injuries. I am also an active member of multiple organizations including AAOS, AOSSM, AANA, and Florida Orthopaedic Society.