

Joshua Parry is an orthopaedic trauma surgeon at Grady Memorial Hospital where he serves as the Director of Orthopaedic Research. He is a prolific writer, authoring over 150 peer-reviewed scientific articles in addition to a medical thriller novel, Virus Thirteen, which has sold over 27,000 units. He is the He is a board-certified orthopaedic surgeon, a fellow of the American Orthopaedic Association and the American Academy of Orthopaedic Surgeons, and an active member of the Orthopaedic Trauma Association and AO Trauma. His clinical practice consists of managing complex musculoskeletal trauma and infections involving both the upper and lower extremities. His main research interests include the management of hip and pelvis fractures.