Dr. Evans is a Professor in the Division of Sports Medicine of the department of Orthopaedic Surgery & Rehabilitation at Loyola University Medical Center. He earned his medical degree at State University of New York at Buffalo where he also completed his residency in orthopaedic surgery. Following residency he completed a fellowship in sports medicine at the University of Chicago. Dr. Evans has a strong interest in resident and medical student education and has taken on the role of Director of Surgical Simulation and Assessment at the Loyola University Stritch School of Medicine. He is Board Certified in orthopaedic surgery and a fellow in the American Academy of Orthopaedic Surgeons. He is also an active member of the Arthroscopy Association of North America and the American Orthopaedic Society for Sports Medicine. In addition to authoring his own academic endeavors, he is the Orthopaedic Journal of Sports Medicine Assistant Editor for Social Media and an editorial reviewer for the American Journal of Sports Medicine and the Journal of Surgical Education. He serves as an editorial board member for the American Journal of Orthopaedic Surgery and the Orthopaedic Journal of Sports Medicine. He is also a team physician for Loyola University and several other local high schools and colleges, including Lewis University and the University of Saint Francis. He serves as head team physician for the United States National University Men's Hockey team and as team physician for the American delegation to the Winter World University Games in numerous countries including Spain, Turkey, Kazakhstan, Russia and Italy. Dr. Evans has also supported USA hockey in other ways, including providing medical coverage for the NCAA Frozen Four Tournament in Chicago and at the American Hearing-Impaired Hockey Association hockey camp, as well as coaching youth hockey for many years.