I am an orthopaedic spine surgeon at OHSU. After my residency at OHSU I completed my spine fellowship at NYU before returning to join the faculty. I take care of a variety of spine disorders from the cervical spine to the sacrum. I was promoted to Associate Professor in 2025. My other academic pursuits include teaching and academic advising. I was named the interim director of academic progress for Undergraduate Medical Education at OHSU in the spring of 2025 and work regularly with medical students and administration in this role.
