Biographical Sketch

Peter Charles Rhee, DO, MS

Dr. Peter Charles Rhee is a hand and microvascular surgeon within the Department of Orthopedic Surgery at the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, MN. He holds academic appointment as a Professor of Orthopedic Surgery. A former active duty and current reserve hand surgeon for the United States Air Force, Dr. Rhee has a breadth of experience and knowledge in treating the traumatized upper. His clinical interest in treating patients with upper motor neuron injuries (cerebrovascular accidents, traumatic brain injuries, and spinal cord injuries). Additionally, he has a special interest in stress management, resiliecence, and performance optimization. He is an avid outdoorsman and has a passion for hunting and fishing. He has a wife (palliative care/hospice physician) and 4 children.